

2022 Maryland Primary Candidate Survey State Legislative District 19

The Maryland Council for American Private Education (CAPE) advocates for the interests of the 125,000-plus nonpublic students in Maryland and their families. We invited all gubernatorial and General Assembly candidates to respond to a brief candidate survey (“support” or “oppose”), and provide a brief comment on each answer, on critical issues for non-public schools in Maryland. All of the survey responses and election links are online at www.mdnonpubs.org.

Frank Nice (R)

Q1: Aid to nonpublic schools: The greatest resource that our country, our state, our county, and especially our district has is our families. It does not matter what political party our family belongs, what religion our family practices, from what ethnic ancestry our family comes, or what color our family is. We know that we need strong families. Parents and family members know what is best for their family to thrive by working hard to make it so. We do not need elected officials telling us how to raise our families; we need elected leaders to ask us what they can do to help us once again have strong families. We need elected officials who will support children's growth in the family. Families should be supported by family-friendly policies that are implemented by elected leaders based on what parents and family leaders deem best for their families. Families that choose charter schools or nonprofit, or nonpublic schools should be provide support they believe is best for their children.

Q2: Public dollars: I do not know of anywhere in our constitutional documents that states that "Public dollars are only for public schools."

Q3: Educational scholarships: Once again, I repeat myself as this is a family decision and not an elected official's decision. The greatest resource that our country, our state, our county, and especially our district has is our families. It does not matter what political party our family belongs, what religion our family practices, from what ethnic ancestry our family comes, or what color our family is. We know that we need strong families. Parents and family members know what is best for their family to thrive by working hard to make it so. We do not need elected officials telling us how to raise our families; we need elected leaders to ask us what they can do to help us once again have strong families. We need elected officials who will support children's growth in the family.

Q4: BOOST: Since the BOOST Scholarship Program is a family-friendly policy, I support it, no matter what the levels for new students are as long as they are sufficient to make it happen.

Q5: Capital dollars: Once again, this is a family-friendly policy, so I support it.

Gubernatorial Candidates

Peter Franchot (D)

Q1: Nonpublic school aid: I will increase funding in our grant programs and award funding to organizations that provide grassroots support for the communities they serve. Preference will always be given to public schools and state programs. However, if a nonpublic school demonstrates that they are philanthropically engaged in their communities, do not discriminate against any students, and are in need of financial assistance, I am willing to award funding on a case-by-case basis.

Q2: Public dollars: I will be an education-oriented governor, and I am committed to improving all of Maryland's public schools so that there is not a disparity in the quality of education between private and public education. That said, I have committed to maintaining the BOOST program, so long as funding is used specifically for those students who would not be able to otherwise attend the school.

Q3: Education scholarships: My funding priority will be the state's public schools. I believe support for private schools should be limited and strategic.

Q4: BOOST: I am on record in support of doubling the BOOST program to support families in need.

Q5: Capital dollars: Investment in our public schools will be the priority. I am willing to explore on a case-by-case basis the state providing support to ensure that all Maryland students can learn in a safe environment.

Douglas F. Gansler (D)

Q1: Nonpublic school aid: I support both robust investment in public schools as well as support for non-public schools, particularly in the areas of security, mental health professionals, and tuition assistance so that parents are empowered to send children to the school of their choice. Furthermore, as a Jewish man, I recognize and respect that some parents want to send their children to religious schools.

Q2: Public dollars: I think the sentence "public dollars are only for public schools" is loaded and suggests a zero sum game that pits private and public schools against each other. Maryland is sitting on an unprecedented surplus. I support the Blueprint's once-in-a-generation opportunity to make historic investments in our public schools, and I will work hard to implement it. I also believe that we should expand educational opportunities at non-profit and religious schools so that parents are empowered to choose the school that is right for their child.

Q3: Education scholarships: I support the use of tax dollars to empower parents to choose the right school for their child. However, Maryland should ensure that the schools who benefit from this support are held accountable to inclusive and non-discriminatory environments.

Q4: BOOST: I support increasing funding for BOOST to empower low-income families, including families who want to send their children to a religious school, to be able to afford the school of their choice.

Q5: Capital dollars: My number one priority for all schools is to ensure the safety of the students, educators, support staff and everyone on school grounds. I support allocating state tax dollars for both security and infrastructure upgrades so that all schools are safe learning environments.

Dan Cox (R)

Q1: Nonpublic school aid: I support the dollars following the children by parental choice.

Q4: BOOST: And I would expand this program.
