Open-ended Candidate Answers

District 29B State Delegate Candidates

Deb Rey (R)

Q1: Aid to nonpublic schools: I will propose/support legislation for education tax dollars to follow the child reinforcing parents/guardians' ultimate authority/responsibility for their child's education creating greater competition/improving educational services

Q2: Public dollars: Tax dollars allocated for education should follow the child to which ever education method decided by the parents/guardians.

Q3: Educational scholarships: I support all methods of educating a child, including home school. The taxpayer dollars should follow the child. This will increase competition among the different educational resources thus improving them all.

Q4: BOOST: Tough question to answer. I support the BOOST program and would like to see funding increase, not stay at current levels. As I wrote earlier, I support the funding to follow the child. If this can be done through the BOOST program, then increasing the funding would be in order.

Q5: Capital dollars: The cost of capital improvements should be in the price of educating the student, for both public and non-public methods of education.

District 29C State Delegate Candidates

Timothy E. Gowen (R)

Q1: Aid to nonpublic schools: I support opening up the aperture to all possibilities for better education.

Q2: Public dollars: The ultimate goal is to provide the best education possible for our children, regardless of the institution. It is not the goal to maintain the standing of existing public schools.

Q3: Educational scholarships: Public, private, charter, home school, micro schools, and every other good idea.

Q5: Capital dollars: I'm afraid that for being non-public schools infrastructure might then force them to become beholden to Maryland rules and standards, thus eliminating their independence and therefore their effectiveness.

Gubernatorial Candidates

Peter Franchot (D)

Q1: Nonpublic school aid: I will increase funding in our grant programs and award funding to organizations that provide grassroots support for the communities they serve. Preference will always be given to public schools and state programs. However, if a nonpublic school demonstrates that they are philanthropically engaged in their communities, do not discriminate against any students, and are in need of financial assistance, I am willing to award funding on a case-by-case basis.

Q2: Public dollars: I will be an education-oriented governor, and I am committed to improving all of Maryland's public schools so that there is not a disparity in the quality of education between private and public education. That said, I have committed to maintaining the BOOST program, so long as funding is used specifically for those students who would not be able to otherwise attend the school.

Q3: Education scholarships: My funding priority will be the state's public schools. I believe support for private schools should be limited and strategic.

Q4: BOOST: I am on record in support of doubling the BOOST program to support families in need.

Q5: Capital dollars: Investment in our public schools will be the priority. I am willing to explore on a case-by-case basis the state providing support to ensure that all Maryland students can learn in a safe environment.

Douglas F. Gansler (D)

Q1: Nonpublic school aid: I support both robust investment in public schools as well as support for non-public schools, particularly in the areas of security, mental health professionals, and tuition assistance so that parents are empowered to send children to the school of their choice. Furthermore, as a Jewish man, I recognize and respect that some parents want to send their children to religious schools.

Q2: Public dollars: I think the sentence "public dollars are only for public schools" is loaded and suggests a zero sum game that pits private and public schools against each other. Maryland is sitting on an unprecedented surplus. I support the Blueprint's once-in-a-generation opportunity to make historic investments in our public schools, and I will work hard to implement it. I also believe that we should expand educational opportunities at non-profit and religious schools so that parents are empowered to choose the school that is right for their child.

Q3: Education scholarships: I support the use of tax dollars to empower parents to choose the right school for their child. However, Maryland should ensure that the schools who benefit from this support are held accountable to inclusive and non-discriminatory environments.

Q4: BOOST: I support increasing funding for BOOST to empower low-income families, including families who want to send their children to a religious school, to be able to afford the school of their choice.

Q5: Capital dollars: My number one priority for all schools is to ensure the safety of the students, educators, support staff and everyone on school grounds. I support allocating state tax dollars for both security and infrastructure upgrades so that all schools are safe learning environments.

Dan Cox (R)

Q1: Nonpublic school aid: I support the dollars following the children by parental choice.

Q4: BOOST: And I would expand this program.
